

Spelling list: o-e words - set 1

A split digraph is a spelling pattern where two letters, typically a vowel and an "e," work together to create a single sound in a word, even though they are separated by another letter. In this list, split digraph o-e is used to spell the long /o/ sound. By adding the e, you make the o say its name.

Here are some examples of how adding an e turns a short /o/ sound into a long /o/ sound:

Cod + e = code

Hop + e = hope

Robe + e = robe

Click on the speaker icon next to each word. Can you hear the long /o/ sounds?

robe	A kimono is a Japanese robe .
globe	Climate change will affect people across the globe .
code	The spy knew the secret code .
joke	The joke was funny.
smoke	The fire made lots of smoke .
stroke	He won the golf match by one stroke .
stole	He did not have a clue who stole his bike.
dome	The mosque has a dome on the roof.
home	The home team had the advantage.
bone	Have you ever broken a bone ?
stone	His sculpture was carved from a block of stone .
hope	I hope you come to my party.
slope	She slid down the slope .
hose	The hose spat out a jet of water.

vote	Please vote for me to be school captain.
quote	The news reporter asked to quote him.
stove	The fire started to crackle in the stove .
froze	The pipes froze and now they leak.
chose	He chose to abstain from alcohol.